LET'S GET HEALTHY FOR GOOD™

What's good for your mind and body is good for your heart. The American Heart Association's Healthy for Good™ promotes holistic well-being, with simple resources that make it easier for you to nourish your mind, heart and body one step at a time. Healthy for Good™ is backed by science you can trust. Join us today – and get healthy for good.

If you're reading this as an HR professional, you can share this guide to get your leadership and workforce involved. But everyone is invited! You can use these same resources to welcome your book club, church group or friends to participate.

Step into better health.

Kick-off Move More Month with National Walking Day on April 2, 2025.

Walking is good for you. Join in the fun on the first Wednesday in April. Let's walk together to benefit our hearts, bodies and minds. Remember, exercise is one of the best ways to keep your body healthy and release stress. Regular physical activity boosts your mood, gives you energy and improves your quality of sleep.

A walk isn't just good for your body—it's a simple, powerful way to care for your mind and soul. Physical activity, like walking, reduces stress, boosts mood, and promotes overall well-being. Yet, walking rates in the U.S. continue to decline, a trend that threatens both mental and physical health.

For decades, the American Heart Association has championed the importance of physical activity in communities across the country. That's why we created National Walking Day more than a decade ago—to encourage everyone to move more and stress less. Today, we know that even a brisk walk can make a world of difference for heart health and mental clarity.

FACTS TO MOVE YOU

Walk more. Stress less. Walking is one of the simplest ways to get and stay active.

Walking is the most popular form of exercise. No wonder! For most people, it's safe, low- or no-cost, and it's easy to stick with. (And did we mention it's fun? Especially with friends.)

Research has shown that walking can have a significant impact on your health by lowering your chances of heart disease.

Walking at a lively pace at least 150 minutes a week can help you think better, feel better and sleep better.

Make a move. One in four U.S. adults sits for longer than eight hours each day. Sitting for too long can hurt your physical and mental health.

A recent study found that swapping just 30 minutes of sitting with low-intensity physical activity reduced risk of death by 17%.

If everyone increased their activity, even by a small amount, we would see an improvement in health and lower the cost of disease in the United States.

Sweet dreams. Prioritize sleep and aim for seven to nine hours a night.

Getting a good night's sleep every night is vital to cardiovascular health. Too little (or too much) sleep is associated with heart disease, studies show. Good sleep improves mood, memory and reasoning.

Check the stress. Money, work and family responsibilities and health concerns are top sources of stress.

Chronic stress can impact your emotional and physical health. Stress can increase your risk for heart attack and stroke.

Workplace stressors – such as long hours, finances, job security and work-family conflict – are as harmful to your health as secondhand smoke.

Pets? Let's! When we see, touch, hear or talk to our furry friends, we feel a sense of goodwill, joy, nurturing and happiness.

Dogs can help ease people out of isolation or loneliness.

Walking a dog is a great way to get exercise, for both of you. (Bring Rex along on National Walking Day, April 2!)

More than one study has suggested that people with dogs tend to live longer than those who don't have canine companions at home.

TAKE STEPS TO IMPROVE HEALTH AND FIGHT STRESS

NATIONAL WALKING DAY

Wednesday, April 2, 2025

Leave stress in the dust.

Exercise – like brisk walking – has so many benefits! But let’s focus on just one here: Exercise is the No. 1 way to fight stress. So get out of your head and on your feet. Even moderate exercise will help you to manage stress, and benefit your heart, body and mind to boot.

Lace up for National Walking Day!

More than a decade ago, the American Heart Association started National Walking Day, which falls on the first Wednesday in April. This year, National Walking Day is April 2.

Many people will join in the fun at 1 p.m. – join a group walking then, or start one. (Of course, you can also walk solo, or take your dog along.) Not available at one o’clock? No worries! You can walk any time that day. The important thing is, you’re taking steps to improve health and fight stress.

Want company? Loop in your coworkers.

Walking is more fun with friends, and National Walking Day invites all of us to walk more (and stress less) at work and at home. Get your whole company involved.

You earned it!

Take a 15-minute walk break today.

Walk with a buddy

Walk with a coworker, virtually or in person.

Walk in place

Walk, stand or stretch at your desk during a meeting.

Walk with pets

Get those paws moving and tails wagging.

Walk at lunch

Helps with digestion and energy.

Walk in a club

Form a group to walk before or after work.

Walk with kids

The perfect way to connect after school.

April 2 - Happy Walking Day!

Here are ways to include everyone on National Walking Day (April 2):

In-person workforce

Send out a company-wide message about National Walking Day and the benefits of walking. (For a template, see page 9 of this toolkit.) Organize a short, 15-minute walk near your place of business for the employees who are working in person that day. Start the walk at 1 p.m. and be sure to post a photo or video of your group on Facebook, Instagram, X or TikTok using the hashtag #WalkingDay. We can't wait to see your smiling faces!

Virtual & hybrid workforce

In your message to your employees, be sure to allow for those who may be working remotely. They can still participate! At 1 p.m. or anytime on April 2, those working away from your place of business can still walk and post a photo or video to social media using the hashtag #WalkingDay. You could also create a Zoom or Teams link during the in-person company walk, allowing those working virtually to join in real time.

Not all business.

Not a part of a company? There's room for everyone on National Walking Day. Invite your book club, homeowners organization or church group to participate, too.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

Walking is good for you. In fact, it's the No. 1 way to reduce stress.

National Walking Day is Wednesday, April 2, 2025. Join us at 1 p.m.

We invite companies (and other groups) to participate and walk.

Everyone can join in, even employees who are working remotely.

Connect on social media using the hashtag #WalkingDay.

COMMUNICATIONS

Use these messages to encourage others to join our Move More movement. Customize these communications to fit your needs.

Support/endorsement request to your company's HR department or executive leadership

Workforce well-being can be viewed as a challenge – or an opportunity.

Yes, our employees face stress on many fronts. But, with the help of the American Heart Association, we can encourage them to focus on their mental and physical health. Simply moving more opens the door to many proven benefits.

We can encourage a healthier way of living for our employees by getting Healthy for Good™ with the American Heart Association. They invite everyone to move more and commit to a healthier lifestyle. I would like your approval for our organization to participate in Move More month this April.

On April 2, join us for National Walking Day. Let's move together to reduce stress, refresh our minds, and take steps toward healthier, happier lives. We'll have free resources available to help our employees get healthier. Weekly emails will offer science-backed steps to encourage moving more and sitting less. The suggested activities have the potential to foster morale, team-building and productivity. You can learn more at heart.org/MoveMore.

Messaging to employees/participants

Note: Replace the information in [brackets] below with your company's particular details.

Week 1: Walk more. Stress less.

A walk is not just good for your body – it's good for your soul. But recent reports show that walking rates are declining steadily in this country. This trend affects the health of people you know and love.

Let's not take this sitting down! We have joined forces with the American Heart Association as part of its Healthy For Good™ initiative. We'll pass along their science-backed advice each week for a month.

Moving more – and walking in particular – has always been part of the American Heart Association's now century-long mission. A simple walk can kick-start healthy habits, leading to a longer, healthier life.

Take a walk with us on Wednesday, April 2. Let's move together to reduce our stress and support our heart health. Everyone is invited:

- In-person employees. We will meet [in the downstairs lobby] and take a short walk [around the park next to our office building]. The walk should take about [15] minutes.
- Those working from home. Join us virtually at [this link]. We hope you're able to walk, too. Be sure to spin your phone around to share the scenery from your stroll (even if it's your at-home treadmill)!

Connect with others across the nation in celebration of National Walking Day. Post a picture or video from your walk to social media, using the hashtag #WalkingDay.

WEEK 2

Week 2: Unleash the power of pets.

Last week, we talked about joining the American Heart Association in a four-week program to encourage moving more for better health. Welcome to week 2!

Do you have a pet at home? Perhaps a dog, a cat or maybe even a horse in a nearby stable that you care for? Well, science confirms what you've probably felt in your heart: Having an animal companion can be good for your physical and mental health.

Stop for a moment and think about taking your dog for a walk or chasing your kitten around the apartment. You and your furry friend are both getting exercise. In fact, science bears this out. Dog owners are more likely to fit in the recommended physical activity and more likely to reach their fitness goals. And having a pet may change habits in ways that can lead to weight loss, too.

So get moving with your pet! You'll both get exercise, and you may find yourself meeting other pet owners in your area. If you can't get a pet just yet, consider volunteering at a local animal shelter, pet-sitting for a friend or helping your neighbors by taking their dog for a walk.

Week 3: Have you been moving more? Stay motivated!

Welcome to week 3.

You may have hit some bumps. Maybe other obligations kept you deskbound for most of the day. Or you had to cancel a planned walk with friends because of family obligations.

That's to be expected! Change isn't always easy.

But the important thing is to stay motivated. The rewards of moving more are definitely worth it. Remember, you are benefiting your mind, body and heart by finding time for physical activity.

What are some ways to stay motivated? Glad you asked!

3

Week 4: Get in the habit: Make healthy habits stick.

Welcome to week 4 of the Move More challenge. We hope you have participated these past few weeks. Remember: Not only is moving more good for your health, but it's fun, too!

This next week and beyond, we encourage you to make physical activity a habit. Once again, the American Heart Association is here to help, with science-backed tips on habit-building.

You may be surprised at just how easy it can be to adopt a lasting habit. Working small, positive steps into your day can help you build a healthier life routine. Learn how forming habits can even help you to stay motivated.

Explore these resources about built-to-last healthy habits:

A final note: Pat yourself on the back.

So many of you took up the challenge and found ways to move more this past month.

Way to go!

As we embark on our second century of lifesaving work, the American Heart Association is committed to helping everyone achieve longer, healthier lives. You can turn to the AHA as a resource year-round. Start by joining Healthy for Good.
